

Summary

A process for producing a transport and assembly aid for rubber form seals, in which, a carrier frame is arranged in the area of an injection tool that, during the creation of the rubber form seal, is injected at least partially onto or around it, where the carrier frame is removed only during the assembly process.